

Nicolas Ganidini Lopez

I am a young Junior Frontend Developer. I am currently looking for new challenges and to be able to continue growing as a professional and take a leap in my career.

Willing to give my best every day to continue growing, learning and contributing my grain of sand for its correct functioning.

I studied a Bachelor's Degree in Social Communication for 3 years until I found what I was really passionate about, the world of programming and development. I had self-taught learning and also took a course with which I began my path in programming.

Objetives

I am currently open to junior/trainee job proposals.

In which I can continue learning and improving. My goals are to be able to grow in the field, continue acquiring experience and knowledge and achieve a certain economic independence that will allow me to dedicate even more time to my professional career.
